Legal basis for the processing of video recordings

Legal basis for processing of video recordings is Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f of the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). Accordingly, video surveillance of company premises and facilities is acceptable to protect the legitimate interests of the company or a third party, unless the interests or fundamental rights and freedoms of data subjects requiring the protection of personal data are overridden.

A legitimate interest arises from internal organisational and administrative purposes, for the protection of the company's facilities, installations and assets, and from the company's interest in damages and legal prosecution in case of damage and criminal activities. In contrast, there is no overriding interest of the persons concerned in the protection of their fundamental rights and freedoms.

Transmission of your personal informations

The records may be sent to law enforcement authorities as evidence for the purpose of prosecution or transmitted to lawyers, agents or consultants for the enforcement of civil claims and used in court and disclosed to contractors or security services providing a service to us, including insurers and consultants, for legitimate purposes.

Duration of storage

The video recordings are stored for 72 hours. The retention period results from the necessity of the video recording for the protection of property as well as for the clarification of thefts and security-related incidents.

The recordings are evaluated event-related in cases that require a search. In these cases, the recordings can be transmitted to lawyers, law enforcement authorities and courts or used to enforce civil law claims and can also be stored for a longer period of time, depending on the duration of the proceedings.

Consequences of not providing the data

The provision of data is not required by law or contract and is not necessary for the conclusion of a contract. However, we would like to point out that it is not possible to enter the house and the area in front of the entrances without recording the data.
